

Center for Relational Recovery

CRR is an outpatient treatment center, located in the heart of Leesburg, VA, outside of Washington DC.

Our clinical team helps men and women dealing with sexual addiction, trauma and relationship issues move from devastation to flourishing. We inspire them to brave hope, so they are relieved of their trauma symptoms, reclaim their power, and create the life and relationships they long for. We do this because the human spirit's ability to create, heal and abundantly live in the face of adversity is a miracle we love being a part of!

CRR accepts candidates who do not have prior experience in treating sexual addiction or trauma but who want to develop these clinical specialties and are willing to engage in a learning curve and training period to build their expertise. CRR also accepts exceptional interns who are interested on long-term placement on our team where they will complete their two semesters of internship as well as their residency and a post-residency period of employment under the supervision and training of the Clinical Director, Michelle Mays LPC, CSAT-S.

If interested, please send your resume and a cover letter to Michellemays@relationalrecovery.com.
