

Faculty Publication Awards

The Office of Sponsored Programs & Research (OSPR) recommends submission of applications at least 2 months prior to when funds are needed due to the necessary administrative review at numerous levels and associated processes.

Purpose

Supports faculty fees and costs associated with publication of research.

Eligibility

Applicant should be a contracted Liberty University faculty member.

Applicant should currently be involved in research instruction or mentorship (provide course number and description or description of research collaboration with students) or be able to provide a proposed plan of involvement

Evidence of real-world impact

Articulate how the scholarship enhances students' competitive advantage in pursuing career opportunities, advances the University's reputation, impacts society, and applies to the industry.

Evidence of acceptance for publication

Ability to provide proof of acceptance for publication expenses. This includes the following:

- Book contract
- Submission fees
- Itemized budget

Evidence of commitment to research

Provide a curriculum vitae that demonstrates specific examples of participation in research and scholarship and contributions to the applicant's field in these areas or the potential to contribute in the future.

Follow-Up Expectations

Faculty receiving this award will be expected to provide the appropriate follow-up documentation that pertains to the purpose of the award:

- Faculty who received an award for publication will need to submit the citation once the document has been published.
- Please upload your Project Summary into the Attachments Tab of your Cayuse Award Record.
- Please email a copy to grants@liberty.edu so that we may highlight your publication and research.
